Nearly Two Hundred Sons and Daughters of Alumni Follow Parental Footsteps to Campus

IN some Greek letter social organizations the sons and daughters of alumni members are known as "legacies." At Ohio University this year there are enrolled some 190 legacies—students whose fathers, mothers, or, in several instances, both parents, have attended the university before them.

The record for the greatest number of "contributions" to the current student body is held by Dr. Harry W. Mayes, '08, and Mrs. Mayes, of Brooklyn, N. Y. The Mayes family is represented by three children: Burton, a junior pre-medical; and Helen and Ruth, both enrolled as freshmen in University College. Doctor Mayes, an obstetrician and gynecologist at the Methodist Episcopal Hospital in Brooklyn, is a former national vice-president of the Ohio University Alumni Association.

The memories of a half dozen graduates are being refreshed by the presence on the campus of two children from each of their respective families. These persons who are doubly represented are: Charles R. Fisher, '16, Canfield; O. E. Fri, '21, Athens; H. R. McVay, '90, deceased, but formerly of Athens; Newman M. Powell, '15, Athens; Mrs. W. E. Larzelere (Grace Herrold, '09, 2-yr.), Manor, Pa.; and Mrs. H. L. Gray (Helen Bishop, '08, 2-yr.), deceased, formerly of Rainelle, W. Va. Besides the two undergraduate daughters, Virginia and Elma, Mrs. Gray should be credited by her alma mater with two sons, Howard and John, who graduated in 1930 and 1932, respectively.

Even more impressive is the McVay roster when previous enrollments are considered. Of the eight children of Herbert R. McVay, six—all who are old enough—have followed in their father's footsteps. The six whose names are in university records are: Martin S. McVay, '20, 2-yr., Mrs. W. E. Miller (Mary Elizabeth McVay, '26), Dorothy Ann McVay, '28x, Josephine McVay, '35, A. M. '36, and Martha and Virginia, undergraduates. The two "youngsters" are expected to enroll in due season.

Eleven students claim both fathers and mothers as graduates. These parents and their undergraduate progeny are: Arthur A. Brainerd, '15, and Mrs. Brainerd (Zella Knoll, '14), Norwood, Pa., a daughter, Elizabeth; H. J. Dickerson, '11 and Mrs. Dickerson (Anna Porter, '15), Lakewood, a daughter, Gertrude; Paul B. Kerr, '10, deceased, and Mrs. Kerr (Berenice Barnes, '11) Hicksville, a son, Paul B. Jr.; Fred S. Wheaton, '12,

Ruth, Burton and Helen Mayes and Mrs. Wheaton (Elizabeth Walters Wheaton, '28), a daughter, Marjorie; E. R. Hayes, '16, A. M. '32, Chester, and Mrs. Hayes (Greta Russell, '15, 2-yr.), deceased, a son, Russell, (Mr. Hayes married a second time, his present wife being the former Miss Helen M. Coast, '26); W. R. Cable, '12, and Mrs. Cable (Mayme Lash, '11, 2-yr.), Athens, a daughter, Beth; Frank C. Ransdell, '19, and Mrs. Ransdell (Flossie Young, '16, 2-yr.), Kenton, a daughter, Martha; C. R. Cline, '00, deceased, and Mrs. Cline (Allena Brookins, '12, 2-yr.), Athens, a daughter, Jane, '37, a graduate student; Edward J. Petras, '16, 2-yr., and Mrs. Petras (Susie Stobbs, '16, 2-yr.), Cleveland, a son, Edward J. Jr.; Roger J. Jones, '13, and Mrs. Jones (Margaret Moore, '12, 2-yr.), Athens, a son, Roger J. Jr.; Prof. Evan J. Jones, Jr., '10, A. M. '13, and Mrs. Jones (Fredia Finsterwald, '11), Athens, a daughter, Martha.

Marth Jones and Roger Jones Jr., are third generation students with a common grandfather, E. J. Jones, Sr. Another third generation student is John Paul Reed, Uhrichsville, sophomore, a son of Paul F. Reed, '11, 2-yr., and a grandson of George W. Reed, '88.

In addition to the graduates previously mentioned, the following alumni have sons or daughters enrolled in Ohio University at the present time: J. E. Roush, '18, Orrville; Fred W. Wagner, '18, Mansfield; J. B. Christman, '17, Massillon; Dr. H. L. Dunlap, '12, Athens, Charles T. Eakin, '15, Wilkingsburg, Pa.; Dow S. Grones, '16 (deceased), Athens; Prof. T. N. Hoover, '05, Athens; Dana M. King, '17, Cincinnati; Virgil C. Miller, '33, Athens; John N. Nixon, '15, Bridgeport; D. A. Pyers, '18, Middleburg; Herbert C. Rickey, '33, New Boston; E. V. Springer, '27, A. M., '32, Albany.

B. W. Taylor, '11, Cleveland; G. F. Timberlake, '27, Amesville; W. H. Webb, '25, Marietta; John D. Welsh, '12, (deceased), Athens; Clyde L. White, Jr., '11, (deceased), Coolville; F. F. Young, '34, Lowell; Mrs. D. E. Starr (Helen Johnson, '10), Mt. Sterling; Mrs. W. A. Murdock (Lillian Cronacher, '11), Ironton; Mrs. E. E. Mundew (Lou Andrew, '10), Glouster; Mrs. Grace Ferguson Lyons, '29, Fremont; Mrs. D. H. Harshbarger (Ora Lively, '10), Jackson; Mrs. W. N. Dow, (Loah Frost, '15), Marietta; Mrs. Olive Jenkins Aldridge, '36, Baltic.

Among the two-year diploma graduates represented on the campus are: L. G. Connett, '10, 2-yr., Athens; Bert D. Boyd, '10, 2-yr., Lakewood; L. H. Rogers, '15, 2-yr., Lorain; Mrs. Elsie Strausbaugh Hodges, '13, 2-yr., Hopedale.

In many instances wives or husbands of the persons in the preceding lists have been former students who did not complete work for a degree or a diploma. For lack of space, regrettably, mention is not made of these non-graduates.

Pennsylvania Student Has More Alumni Relatives Than Any Other

When the Rev. Jacob Lindley graduated from Princeton in 1800 and shortly thereafter came West to become president of Ohio University, he could not of course know that for six consecutive generations his family would be represented in the student body of the Ohio school and that it would become the most numerously represented family in the history of the pioneer institution. Such is the case, however.

Today, when Jane Elizabeth Eakin, Wilkensburg, Pa., freshman at Ohio University, steps into Fine Arts Hall on the campus, she comes face to face with a portrait of her great-great-great-great-great-uncle, Jacob Lindley, who was the first president of the University.

Jane, shown in the accompanying picture, standing beside a portrait of her illustrious relative is enrolled in University College from which she expects to advance next year to the College of Fine Arts where she will major in designing, interior decorating and painting. Popular and attractive, the Ohio University co-ed is art editor of the Ohioan, a campus publication with a national reputation.

Miss Eakin's father is Charles T. Eakin, '15, a metallurgist with the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. in Pittsburgh. Her mother is the former Miss Ruth Gillilan, '17x. Her maternal grandparents are the late Lewis M. Gillilan, '91, and Mrs. Gillilan (Lizzie McVay, '96), who now resides in Short Hills, N. J. Paul M. Gillilan, '15, Erie, Pa., and Mrs. David B. Welch (Anna Gillilan, '17), Springfield, Utah, are an uncle and aunt, respectively. Great-aunts and a great-uncle who graduated from Ohio University are Mrs. C. E. Skinner (Gladys McVay, '89), Wilkensburg, Pa.; Dr. Herbert R. McVay, '90, who died in 1931; Dr. Anna Pearl McVay, '92, New York City; and Bertha W. McVay, '93, Albany, Ohio. Another great-uncle of Miss Eakin is Strickland W. Gillilan, '95x, Washington, D. C., a nationally known humorist. Besides these the names of more than two score blood relatives, and relatives by marriage, are to be found in Ohio University records.

Another Ohio University undergraduate who lacks only one "great," or one generation, of equalling Miss Eakin's relationship to Jacob Lindley is Martha Jane McVay, daughter of the late Dr. H. R. McVay, and Mrs. Grace Fullington McVay, '29x the latter of Athens.

Of particular interest to Ohio University people is the special stamp issued by the U. S. Post Office commemorating the Ordinance of 1787. The stamp—a purple, three-center—bears a map of the Northwest Territory and pictures of Rev. Manasseh Cutler and Gen. Rufus Putnam, the two men who are recognized as co-founders of Ohio University.

New Medical Officer Heads University Health Service

A new "out-patient dispensary" has been made available for the use of Ohio University students as a part of the newly reorganized student health service. A large room on the basement floor of the Agriculture and Household Arts Building has been equipped to serve as the dispensary. The University Infirmary will in the future be used only as a hospital for bed patients and as headquarters for Dr. George N. Burger, newly appointed medical officer of the university. Dr. Burger will be assisted by two full-time registered nurses.

Beginning this fall, and every semester hereafter, each Ohio University student will be assessed a $2.00 health fee for which he may avail himself of the following services:

1. At least one complete physical examination every year that he attends the university. The examination will be compulsory for each new incoming student and voluntary for those who, at the present time, have been enrolled a year or more.

2. Essential routine laboratory tests for the detection or exclusion of certain diseases and such other tests as may be deemed desirable.

3. A dispensary service for treatment of injuries and diseases of an ambulatory nature.

4. A limited hospitalization at the University Infirmary if bed service is available, upon the payment of an additional fee. Because of the limited bed facilities at the Infirmary, the university cannot guarantee hospitalization for students.

5. Vaccination against certain communicable diseases, especially smallpox. These vaccinations will, for the coming year at least, be optional with students.

Students who are ill in bed in local homes or dormitories will be treated by their own physicians as in previous years.

New equipment for the Infirmary and the dispensary includes an oxygen tent for use in pneumonia cases, a basic metabolism testing device, examining and treatment tables, and equipment for minor injuries. A laboratory for blood tests has been given a centrifuge and a new high-powered microscope.

Dr. Burger has announced that Wasserman tests for syphilis may be offered next year.

Editorial Comment . . .

BECAUSE of the unusual amount of publicity currently attaching to the Northwest Territory, the Ohio Company, and Ohio University, the question — always a periodic one — is being asked more frequently than ever, "is Ohio University a land grant college?" The answer is "No."

It is true that the contract of the Ohio Company with the "Honorable Board of Treasury of the United States of America" on October 27, 1787, provided, among other things, that there should be two complete townships reserved for the purposes of "an university." This contract was confirmed by an act of Congress on April 21, 1792, and a patent, or deed, conveying the land was signed by George Washington and Thomas Jefferson, May 10, 1792.

It is true that after Gen. Rufus Putnam and his surveyors had located the Ohio Company's purchase, Athens and Alexander townships, originally in Washington county, were designated as the "college lands." And it is true that the lands were leased and that the rentals were supposed to constitute the endowment of the university.

Nevertheless, land grant colleges, as commonly known today, are those which were established under the Morrill Act (Land Grant College Act) of 1862. Ohio State University (1870) is one of the schools thus established.

The Morrill Act was signed by Abraham Lincoln on July 2, 1862, and provided that public land in an amount equal to 30,000 acres for each senator and representative then in Congress should be apportioned to each State, which could be sold and the proceeds invested for the benefit of certain, specified types of educational enterprises.

Section four of the act states that "all moneys derived from the sale of the lands . . . shall be invested in stocks of the United States or of the States, or some other safe stocks, yielding not less than five per centum . . . and that the moneys so invested shall constitute a perpetual fund, the capital of which shall remain forever undiminished and the interest of which shall be inviolably appropriated . . . to the endowment, support, and maintenance of at least one college where the leading object shall be, without excluding other scientific and classical studies, and including military tactics, to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts . . . in order to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions in life." No portion of the money, or interest thereon, derived from the sale of the government land can be "applied . . . to the purchase, erection, preservation, or repair of any building or buildings."

It was further provided in the act that a sum, not to exceed ten per cent of the amount received by a state, could be used for the purpose of buying land for experimental farms.

At the present time there are 69 land grant institutions, 26 of which are state universities. There is one in each state (except Massachusetts, which has two), one each in Porto Rico, Hawaii, and Alaska, and 17 in southern states, exclusively for Negroes.

The Second Morrill Act of 1890 and the Nelson Amendment of 1907 provided for direct Federal appropriations for the expense of instruction in certain prescribed curricula.

Whatever may have been the experience of the so-called land grant schools with regard to the adequacy of their endowment, it is certain that the returns from Ohio University's grant of two townships have always been a great disappointment. The University lands were laid off in tracts of not less than 80 nor more than 240 acres each, and leased for terms of 99 years, renewable forever, at a yearly rental of six per cent on the valuation, "in their original and unimproved state," as then determined by three disinterested freeholders.

Subsequent efforts of the University to have the leased land revalued were stubbornly resisted by the leaseholders with court injunctions and other obstructive measures. Under pressure from a lobby of lessees and their friends the legislature in 1843, passed an act that forbade further consideration of the revaluation question. This act was characterized by former President James A. Garfield, a member of the Ohio Senate at the time, as "an unfortunate exercise of power without right."

The maximum annual income produced by the rental of the University lands probably never exceeded $4,500. The income was much less than that contemplated by Manasseh Cutler, who predicted "that if the state made no limitation on the revenue, the endowment might ultimately, in time, produce as much as forty or fifty thousand dollars annually."

Last year Ohio University realized approximately $3,900 as interest on $65,500, realized from the sale of land and deposited in the state's irreducible debt fund. In addition there was exactly sixty cents received from lessees as rental on land not owned outright, the rental fees in many instances being delinquent.

As a consequence of the disappointingly small income, the University's financial affairs were in a continuously precarious condition for the first three-quarters of a century. It was not until 1875 that the state made a direct contribution in the form of a money appropriation. In 1896 an act was passed levying "annually a tax on the grand list of the taxable property of the state" for the support of Ohio University. Since that time the policy of state tax support has been firmly established and broadened.

On and About the Campus . . .

SHERIDAN'S comedy of manners, "The Rivals," was presented by the Ohio University Theater on the evenings of December 10 and 11, with a matinee performance on the latter date. Florence Meschan, Cleveland, women's state oratorical contest winner, played the inimitable role of Mrs. Malaprop. Jane Foster, Athens, Jeanne Ruhl, Columbus, and Susan Lash, Athens, were cast in other leading feminine roles. Alex Torok, Youngstown, Roger Crow, Garfield Heights, and Reuben Plaskoff, Cleveland, were in the spot-lighted male roles.

PLANS for a much needed "Student Lounge" are developing rapidly and have been given impetus by the announcement of the Campus Affairs Committee that one thousand dollars would be made available for the project. Student groups are expected to take the initiative in raising an additional one thousand dollars. The remodeling and rearranging of a sizable area in the basement of the Men's Union is under consideration. Another possibility as a site for the lounge is the unused Alumni Room in the basement of the Alumni Memorial Auditorium. The latter has the disadvantage of being more expensive to remodel. Tentative drawings and specifications which have been prepared call for a modernly furnished, softly lighted recreation center where light lunches and fountain drinks will be available.

ALL records for attendance at formal banquets of the Women's Athletic Association were broken this month when approximately one hundred women attended the 1937 banquet at Hotel Berry. Thirty-seven women were granted awards for participation in the various sports activities of the organization. Betty Goldsmith, Elmira, N. Y., is the W.A.A. president.

ACCORDING to E. E. Litkenhouse, noted statistician, in his National Football Ratings for 1937, Ohio University finished thirty-ninth in a list of 649 schools that played intercollegiate football during the past season. The ratings are based on the teams' records, the strength of their opponents, and records of the past. The Bobcats were rated ahead of teams of quite a few larger schools, among them Columbia, Princeton, Chicago, Wisconsin, and Illinois. . . . Finishing their season on December 4 the Ohio University girls' hockey team defeated an Ohio State team at Columbus, 5-0. . . . Head Coach Don Peden on December 3 attended a banquet in Champaign, Ill., celebrating

A Scene from "The Rivals"

Coach Robert G. Zuppke's 25th anniversary at the University of Illinois. Peden, a former Zuppke protege, graduated from Illinois in 1923 and was one of scores of lettermen who returned to honor their former mentor. All of the Big Ten coaches and the governors of three states were also present at the celebration.

ALL sororities, women's dormitories and independent housing units have been invited to submit to Major M. E. Olmstead, the names of their respective candidates for Honorary Colonel, the final selection to be made by guests at the R.O.T.C. Military Ball on February 18. Candidates must be members of the Junior Class.

THE Convocations Program Committee, headed by Prof. C. C. Robinson, has announced the scheduling of several prominent speakers for appearance in Alumni Memorial Auditorium next semester. On February 10, Salvador de Madariaga, known as the best informed man in the diplomatic service of Spain, will speak on international affairs. J. Frederick Essary, dean of Washington correspondents and the only journalist ever to have been elected president of both the National Press Club and the Gridiron Club of Washington, will appear on March 2. Later in March, Judge Florence Allen of the Ohio Supreme Court, will be a convocation speaker. The Sigma Xi Club, composed of faculty members of the national science fraternity, plans the bringing of a distinguished speaker to the campus on April 4. President Conant of Harvard University has been invited to be the guest speaker on April 17, which has been designated as scholarship awards day.

ONE hundred seventy-five pounds of turkey, enormous quantities of potatoes, dressing, corn, lakes of gravy, oceans of coffee, gallons of cranberry ice and plenty of mince pie were in evidence when the varsity and freshman football squads, together with members of the faculty Athletic Committee, the athletic staff, and guests, sat down to the annual football banquet on December 9. Brief talks were made by the toastmaster, Dr. H. T. Houf, chairman of the Athletic Committee, President Herman G. James, Head Coach Don C. Peden and Line Coach William J. Trautwein.

AS a climax to their Christmas activities the Y.W.C.A. presented a program entitled "The Pageant of the Carols," in Alumni Memorial Auditorium on Sunday evening, December 12. The University Choir and the Symphony Orchestra participated, with the audience joining in the singing of some of the carols.

FRESHMEN who excel in scholarship, activities and campus citizenship will be recognized at a Freshman Convocation next June. Plans are also on foot for presentation of a freshman operetta in the spring.

AS a contribution to the Athens Community Chest the proceeds of an all-student dance, "Campus Capers," were given to the charity fund.

Washington Economist Represents Department In National and International Conferences

ANOTHER Ohioan whose professional achievements are deemed worthy of special mention in The Ohio Alumnus is Dr. Oscar Clemen Stine, '08, who is in charge of the Division of Statistical and Historical Research in the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. Doctor Stine's picture will be found on the front cover page.

A native of West Virginia, Dr. Stine graduated from Ohio University in 1908. Post-graduate studies were pursued at the University of Chicago, Harvard University, and the University of Wisconsin, a Ph.D. degree being awarded by the latter institution in 1921.

After a brief period of teaching and administrative work in public schools, Dr. Stine entered government civil service in 1916 as an assistant in farm economics. Today he is recognized as one of the leading economists in the Department of Agriculture.

In 1926 he was a member of the International Statistical Commission to plan the World Agricultural Census. In the same year he was a delegate to the General Assembly of the International Institute of Agriculture, which met in Rome. At the conclusion of this assembly he spent two months studying agricultural conditions in Central Europe, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and England.

In 1934 Dr. Stine was a delegate to the International Conference of Agricultural Economists which met at Bad Eilsen, Germany, and from this conference he went to Moscow as a delegate, again, to the General Assembly of the International Institute of Agriculture. He also represented the Department of Agriculture on a joint commission to plan for collaboration between Russia and the United States in collecting and exchanging information with respect to agriculture.

The Washington economist is a member of the executive committee of the Conference on National Income and National Wealth, and a member of the executive committee of the National Price Conference — both organized to cooperate with the National Bureau of Economic Research, New York City, in developing research in these fields. He is also a member of the Central Statistical Board, an organization established for coordinating the statistical activities of the national government.

For some years Dr. Stine was editor of the Journal of Farm Economics and later was editor of Agricultural History, the journal of the Agricultural History Society. He has served as president of the Farm Economic Association, and as president of the Agricultural History Society. At the present time he is secretary-treasurer of the latter organization.

For 15 years, Dr. Stine has been an adviser and an instructor in the development of the Graduate School of the United States Department of Agriculture. In the meantime he has been, during various periods, a lecturer at American University, Washington, D. C.; at the Brookings Institution (organized for public service through research in the social sciences); and again this year in the Graduate School of American University. In the fall of 1936 he was granted a leave from the Department of Agriculture to serve as exchange professor and research associate with the Giannini Foundation at the University of California.

Dr. Stine is married and is the father of four children. In Washington he resides at 6345 Western Ave., N. W.

Youngstown and Mansfield Alumni Activities

SIXTY-FIVE members of the Ohio University Women's Club of Youngstown were present for the luncheon on November 20 which was the second major event of an extensive social and activities program for 1937-38. In keeping with the Thanksgiving season were the table decorations dominated by a centerpiece of fruit, gourds, and corn in the husk.

The favors were miniature turkeys made of small pine cones brought back last summer by Lucy Pittenger, '22, 2-yr., club president, from the Grand Canyon of Arizona.

Rev. Albert B. Denton, associate minister of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, and Mrs. Denton were special guests. The former reviewed a three months' European trip, illustrating his talk with motion pictures.

The committee in charge of the Thanksgiving luncheon was composed of Mrs. Ethel Lattimer, chairman, Mary Lupse, Genevieve Mariner, Mrs. George Watt, Leora Ashurst and Lillian Spellman. The next regular meeting will be held January 29 at Raver's Tavern. Meanwhile, however, the club sold tickets on a percentage basis for the screen production, "Conquest," a picture based on the life of Napoleon, starring Greta Garbo, which opened December 3 for a week's run at the Warner Theater. The ticket selling enterprise was for the benefit of the club's Ohio University loan fund.

Forty-six persons — alumni, husbands, and wives — made up the reunion party which greeted Dean Irma E. Voigt on December 7 at the First Methodist Church in Mansfield. The Mansfielders were called together by their president, Herman D. Bishop, '14, and their secretary, Paul I. Hauserman, '31, A.M., '36.

The guests were identified by cards bearing the imprint of the Alumni Gateway made from a linoleum block. Dean Voigt, who earlier in the day had addressed the Girls' Athletic Association of Mansfield High School, was the speaker of the evening. An informal program was interspersed with the singing of Ohio University songs. During a brief business session Mr. Hauserman was elected president and Mary J. Curtis, '37, secretary-treasurer, for the coming year.

Hardihood of "Pioneers" Tested by Rigors of C-o-l-d, Winter Weather

Just how hardy will be the "modern pioneers" who left Ipswich, Mass., December 3, 1937, to retrace the Westward steps their forebears trod at an earlier date, remains to be seen. On their journey to Marietta this band of thirty-six young men who compose the cast of the federal-sponsored caravan and pageant, hope to duplicate insofar as possible all of the experiences of a similar party which set forth to open up the Northwest Territory just 150 years previously.

Farrell, '37

Already, casualties among the members of the covered wagon caravan have been reported. Blistered feet appeared on the first day's trek. Also, during the first week, the travelers encountered heavy snows and freezing temperatures to which they were not accustomed and for which even their coonskin caps, leather jackets, and fringed leggins were an inadequate protection.

As reported last month, Ohio University is represented in the party by William J. L. Farrell, '37, who can be seen in several of the pictures which have thus far appeared in the newspapers of the country.

With rich and colorful costumes, with exciting dramatic action, and with spectacular lighting effects, the members of the pageant cast will depict incidents which led to the organization of the Northwest Territory. The eight-episode pageant, enactment of which will require from one and one-half to two hours, will be given at each stop en route.

After the caravan arrives in Ohio next April the following cities will be visited: East Liverpool, Steubenville, Martins Ferry, Bellaire, New Matamoras, Marietta, Athens, Beverly, McConnessville, Zanesville, Cambridge, New Philadelphia, Canton, Wooster, Akron, Kent, Warren, Ash-Tabula, Chardon, Cleveland, Oberlin, Norwalk, Sandusky, Mansfield, Mt. Vernon, Newark, Delaware, Westerville, Columbus, Circleville, Chillicothe, Washington C. H., Springfield, Bellefontaine, Bowling Green, Toledo,

Van Wert, Fort Recovery, Greenville, Dayton, Oxford, Hamilton, Cincinnati, Georgetown, Manchester, Portsmouth, Gallipolis, Pomeroy and Bel-pro.

Death of Former Student in Spain Denied by Close Friends of Fighter

With credit to Mark Twain, the rumors of the death, in Spain, of Randall B. Smith, '38x, a member of the International Brigade fighting for the Leftist cause, have been characterized by New York City friends as being grossly exaggerated. The denial is based upon a report from the "Friends of the Abraham Lincoln Battalion."

Smith entered a training camp in Spain last June. He was bombed while driving an ambulance back of the lines but contrary to the first official reports his injuries were not fatal. A member of an excellent family, he is a son of Dr. Elizabeth C. Smith, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania State Director of Maternal Health. A sister, Isabel Smith, '33, and a cousin, Jeannette Campbell, '36, are graduates of Ohio University, while a brother Edwin J. Smith would have graduated in 1933 had he remained in school.

In a letter, dated September 18, written to an Ohio University undergraduate, Smith described some of his experiences in the anti-Fascist army. "I and the others," he related, "came to a city (military censorship does not allow the mention of towns or cities) which is sort of a distributing point for the International Brigade. There we split up — some going to artillery, others to technical jobs, but the majority to infantry. I stuck to the infantry where our group was selected for training as a machine gun company."

Later, the letter reports, he became an ambulance driver, serving on the Madrid front; then a truck driver, transporting munitions and troops to the front, and finally an ambulance driver again.

"We are paid according to the work done, and whether or not we are at the rear or the front," Smith stated. "In training, a soldier gets 60 pesatos every ten days; at the front he gets 150. An ambulance driver, due to the longer, more irregular hours and danger involved, gets 110 at the rear and 160 at the front." In exchange a Spanish pesato is worth about four cents.

Ohio U. Educator To Assist State Department in Developing Program

The State Department of Education has asked that Dr. E. A. Hansen of the College of Education at Ohio University be released from active participation in the University during the second semester 1937-1938 in order that he may assist in the work of the Department. The request has been granted by the University.

It is the purpose of the Department of Education, under the direction of Dr. G. H. Reavis, Director of Instruction, to make a study of curricular offerings in the elementary schools of the state of Ohio and to formulate and put into bulletin form materials which should become fundamental in the setting of standards in the elementary schools. Such a bulletin would include suggestions which would provide general guidance and direction for the elementary schools of the state in keeping with modern points of view in elementary education.

The work of Dr. Reavis and Dr. Hansen, with others who will assist them, should result in the formulation of general aims for the elementary school and of standards which would encourage thoughtful procedures and reasonable freedom in the organization of materials of instruction and curricula for the elementary school. It is hoped that the results of this study and the formulation of procedures will give direction to the teachers and educational administrators of the state in the work of the elementary school.

Ohio University feels complimented in the selection of Dr. Hansen for this state-wide study. It is a recognition not only of Dr. Hansen's work as an educator in the state but also of the esteem in which Ohio University is held as a teacher-preparation institution.

Gridders Awarded Places on Honor Teams; Grovermen Win Two Tilts Before Vacation

By DANA P. KELLY

WELL, the annual winter meeting of the Buckeye Conference representatives is over and the expected fireworks fizzled out. In fact, O. C. Bird, Ohio's athletic director, stated that the meeting was very peaceful. The "toughest little loop in the country" will continue intact for at least one more year.

The biggest surprise of the month came when it was announced by reporters that Western Reserve might seek admission to the Buckeye Conference at the spring meeting. Bill Edwards, Redcat coach, hinted that maybe the Cleveland university would be interested if they were not required to play more than four Conference teams in one football season.

It is unlikely, however, that Reserve will affiliate itself with the Buckeye in the near future. The Cleveland institution has existing relationships with three other colleges in Cleveland which it finds desirable and financially profitable to maintain. Then, too, Reserve has two eastern schools, Boston University and Syracuse, on its list. With these tie-ups even a limited scheduling of but four Buckeye teams would considerably hamper the Redcat schedule makers.

Johnny Montgomery and Chet Adamczyk, Ohio University's outstanding grid stars during the past season have been chosen on practically every All-Ohio and every All-Buckeye honorary selection this year. Danny Donofrio, senior guard, was also named on the first team of two All-Ohio selections. Paul Wilcox, junior end, gained the honor of being chosen on the second All-Buckeye selections and on the third team of one All-Ohio group. Bill Jurkovic, senior back was named on the third team of two All-Buckeye selections.

Butch Grover, Ohio's basketball mentor, has his "Big Four" in shape again and the Bobcats are off to another great start this season. In the season opener against Bliss, the Grovermen coasted through to a 54-47 win the second half after the Columbus boys had surprised by their strength, in the early part of the game. In the opener, George Hood, the "forgotten man" of the Big Four in last season's All-Buckeye selections, blossomed out as a potential leading scorer for the Bobcats as he collected 19 points for his evening's endeavors. George was operating to best advantage under the new rule which eliminates the center tip and makes a fast break game possible. Hood, who hails from Hamilton, was invaluable in feeding the ball to his teammates last season, but he was apparently not interested in scoring for on innumerable occasions he would wait for a teammate to come down the floor to score a basket he might easily have made himself. The fans will undoubtedly remember George's great defensive work of last season when he completely stopped McAdams, Ohio Wesleyan's one-man team.

Gene Rinta, Coach Grover's most dependable point getter and ball handler, also had a field night against Bliss as he dropped in a total of 17 points.

Washington and Jefferson came to Athens on December 15 with a quintet touted as one of the East's finest. The local fans began to wonder about the Pennsylvania outfit, though, when the Bobcats got off to a 14 to 2 lead and the Presidents were held without a field goal until midway in the first half. The visitors finally got underway, however, and were trailing by 7 points at the half.

At the start of the second half the Bobcats again piled up a twelve point margin as they took a 30 to 18 lead with about 7 minutes of play remaining in the contest. At this point, however, the Presidents scoring twins, Bud Jeannette and Bill Loughlin got busy and ran the score to 26-30 before the Grover men could recover.

The Bobcats tried to check the fast pace of the ball game while they still maintained a four point margin, but the Presidents kept on the tired Grovermen who played the entire contest without a substitution. Nick Lalich finally sneaked under the hoop for a dog shot and ran the Ohio margin to 6 points, then a foul toss by Malokas further added to the Bobcat advantage. With two minutes left to play, the Bobcats had a 38 to 32 lead but the visitors, led by Bill Loughlin, put on one last spurt and cut the Ohio margin to 3 points as the game ended with the Bobcats in possession of a thrilling, well-earned 38 to 35 victory over the courageous visitors.

Especially pleasing in the victory over Washington and Jefferson was the great showing of Arend Grothaus, Hamilton junior, who played the best game of his college career. The big center was responsible for getting the ball off both backboards, and dropped in two beautiful outcourt shots when the Bobcats really needed them. His ball-handling was also greatly improved and Arend need no longer take a back seat for the "Big Four." He belongs — he showed that in the W & J game.

After a successful pre-holiday season which saw the Bobcats take two victories in their initial tilts, the cage squad will disband for the Christmas season and take a rest before the tough Buckeye schedule gets under way. After meeting Marietta at Athens on January 5, the Grover men will travel to Cincinnati for their Buckeye opener with the Bearcats on January 8.

Jack Rhodes, swimming coach, received a pretty disappointing Christmas package when he was forced to undergo an appendicitis operation on the eve of the swimming team's departure for Fort Lauderdale, Florida. The natators left December 18, however, under the direction of Prof. George W. Clark, and will spend the holiday season in Florida training for the coming season.

When roaring flood waters of the Ohio River struck the village of New Richmond (near Cincinnati) last January, two local churches, the Cranston Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church and the Presbyterian Church, were badly damaged. The congregations decided to rehabilitate jointly. With a grant from the Emergency Flood and Aid Fund of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions, and other financial help, the "Cranston Memorial Presbyterian Church" was formed.
